SIZING GUIDE

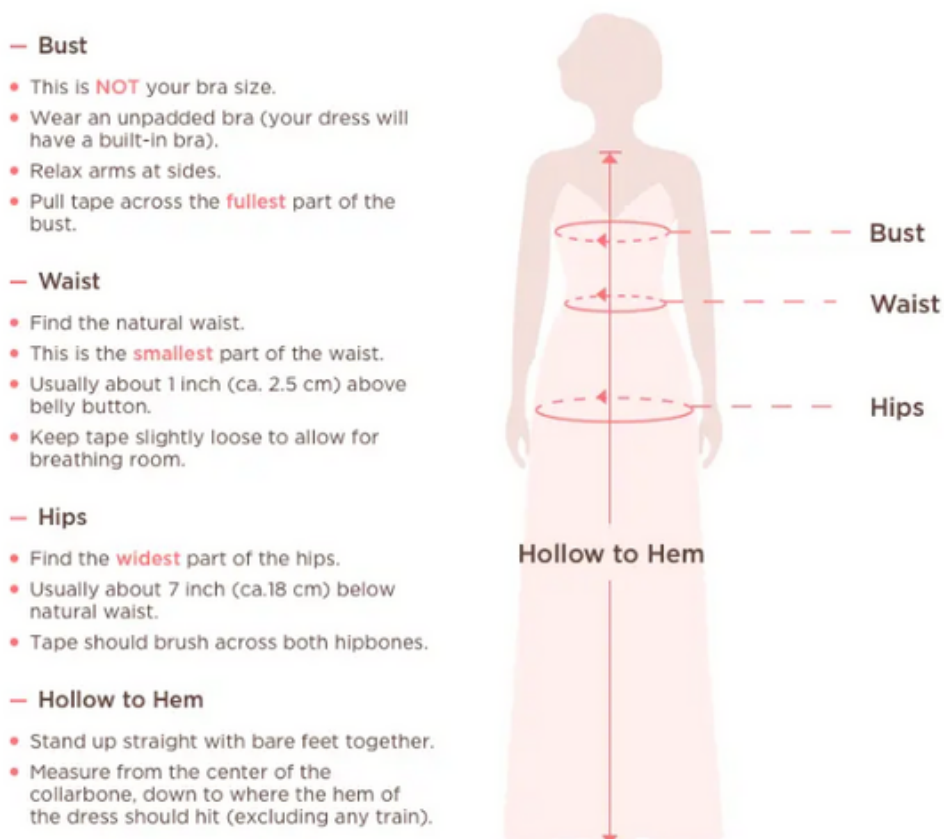

How Our Sizing Differs

Our sizing is completely different from standard retailers as occasion wear dresses tend to be more structured and less stretchy than regular clothing. We cannot determine your size by your shirt or pant size, so you must measure yourself and compare your measurements to our size chart to find your best size.

You will still need to measure yourself if you've purchased an occasion dress from another formal wear company, as sizing can differ from company to company.

A few additional notes to consider when measuring:

- When using your measuring tape, you'll want to ensure that you don't pull it too tight around your body. Give yourself some wiggle room so that you have room to breathe.
- Wear fitted clothing (like leggings and a tank top) when measuring and a supportive bra (whether you plan to wear a bra with the dress or not). If you have shapewear you plan to wear, wear this when measuring.
- You do not need to be measured at a bridal store or by a seamstress. If you are, please ensure they read or watch our guidelines to measure you correctly, as different bridal stores and sewists will take measurements differently.

SIZING GUIDE

AU Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Hollow to Hem (front)
6	80	62	88	144
8	85	67	93	147
10	88	70	96	150
12	93	75	101	152
14	97	79	105	152
16	104	86	112	155
18	109	92	116	155
20	114	98	121	155
22	119	104	126	155
24	124	109	131	155
26	130	115	136	155
28	135	121	141	155

Please Note:

- Dress/Shoe size depends on the items. Please check the product details page for the exact size.
- The hollow-to-hem measurement of our standard sized floor length dresses already includes 2 inches (ca. 5 cm) extra to fit high heels (including those with Sweep/Court/Chapel/Watteau Train).

Our sizing runs true to our size chart, but the measurement sets listed on the size charts reflect the measurements of the human body. They do not reflect the actual dress measurements, as we add little wiggle room to standard-size dresses for comfort.

When you compare your measurements, you may find that yours do not exactly align with the measurements on the chart. Don't worry, you can always order a custom-size dress instead..
